June 2107

Through July 30, Aline Mare will have new work from her “Angle of Repose” series as part of “Made in Mojave” at Museum of Art and History in Lancaster, CA. “Mare combines photography and painting in elegant portrayals of nature,” writes Betty Brown in Fabrik. “Tiny fruits of the Tree of Life are isolated in inky haloes of chiaroscuro. Roots, flowers, seeds and stems are arrayed over darkly textured grounds, as if suspended in an eternal twilight. They emerge from dusky fields, calling our attention like precious objects assembled in a curiosity cabinet.” Below is Mare’s Queen Creosote, hand-painted on metal print, 24 by 36 inches.
